

Maryland Humanities Council Grants Fiscal Year 2008

#491 Museum Exhibit: "Amber Waves of Grain: 3 Centuries of Wheat in Dorchester County, Maryland"

Dorchester County Historical Society is building a permanent exhibition in Neild Agricultural Museum. The exhibit will display colorful illustrations and insightful text panels about wheat.

Nov. 7, 2007

Dorchester County Historical Society ($1,100.00)

#492 Black Panther Rank and File Symposium

MICA housed the "Black Panther Rank and File" symposium and exhibition that featured artifacts, recordings, and photography. Renowned artists and distinguished professors discussed the aesthetics and history of the Black Panther Party.

Nov. 20, 2007

Maryland Institute College ($1,200.00)

#494 Out of Shadows: Servants in the Spotlight

The Riversdale Historical Society's exhibit showcases the lives of those who served the Calverts. Using lighting, mannequins and props, room vignettes depict the daily routine of the servants.

Feb. 25, 2008

Riversdale Historical Society ($1,200.00)

#498 Racism in America 1968-2008: What has Changed? What more Needs to be Done? What does America's and Howard County's report cards look like relative to the "I Have a Dream" speech? Has the metaphorical promissory note been paid?

Howard County and Poetry and Literature Society will have a panel discussion that critiques race relations for each decade starting from 1968 to the present. Poetry selected by Lucille Clifton, former Maryland poet laureate, will be read during presentation.

Jan. 15, 2008

Howard County Poetry and Literature Society ($6,347.50)

#501 Building Unity in Community: A Celebration of the Life and Legacy of Dr. Martin King, Jr.

Alleghany College of Maryland celebrates the legacy of Martin Luther King, Jr. Programs include discussions, living history performances and workshops.

Dec. 17, 2007

Alleghany College of Maryland ($9,936.50)

#505 Dialogue for Bridging the Racial Divide: Remembering the Philosophy, Legacy and Spirit of Reconciliation of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Coppin State University presents four programs that focus on race in America. Dr. Mary Frances Berry, social justice advocate and the University of Pennsylvania history professor, will be one of the guest speakers.

Jan. 9, 2008

The Honors College and the Department of History, Geography and Global Studies,
Coppin State University ($7,500.00)

#507 Continuing the Dream through Reflecting, Reconciling and Dialogue—40 Years Later

Hosting the event, "A Day of Dialogue," Hood College hopes to address issues of racial diversity and tolerance. Discussions will be centered around Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s legacy.

Jan. 4, 2008

Hood College ($5,927.00)

#516 Living History Series: Historical Role of African Americans in Defense of the United States During Segregated Times (Revolutionary War to the Korean War)

This project examines the role of African American service men and women in U.S. world conflicts from the Revolutionary War to the Korean Conflict. War veterans and scholars discuss the hardships that blacks endured during the segregated years in the U.S. military.

Jan. 30, 2008

Friends of Benjamin Banneker Historical Park and Museum ($5,010.00)

#519 A la carte, the program book advertising all Frostburg State University and Allegany and Garrett County community programs and workshops held in conjunction with the Smithsonian exhibit, Key Ingredients: America by Food

The publication, A la Carte, promotes community programs of FSU, Allegany and Garrett County that focus on culture, food and land conservation. Programs featured in A la Carte are held in conjunction with the Smithsonian exhibition, Key Ingredients: America by Food.

Dec. 7, 2007

Frostburg State University ($1,200.00)

#527 Key Ingredients: America by Food

Calvert Library hosts Smithsonian's traveling exhibition, Key Ingredients: America by Food. Book discussions, displays, films and contests showcase Calvert County's rich food heritage.

Feb. 6, 2008

Calvert Library ($1,195.00)